Colonel Lloyd T. Moore, Jr., USAF
Director of Soviet Affairs
Department of the Air Force
Headquarters Air Force Intelligence Service
Bolling AFB, Washington, D.C. 20332

Dear Colonel Moore:

Thank you for your thoughtful letter of 5 March 1987 describing the reorganization of Air Force Intelligence and informing me of your designation as Director of the new Directorate of Research and Soviet Studies. Drawing the different Air Force components together under your aegis will, I am sure, greatly enhance the effectiveness of what has already been a pioneering program within the government to alert policymakers, analysts and members of the Armed Forces to significant developments within the USSR and Eastern Europe.

I congratulate you on this new assignment and look forward to working with you further on initiatives of mutual interest. Your support in funding our interagency external research projects is deeply appreciated.

Sincerely,

Dear [Redacted]

STAT

Air Force Intelligence at the Headquarters level is about to undergo a complete reorganization. Briefly put, the aim is to divide the policy making functions, which will remain on the Air Staff proper, and the production function, which will comprise a new organization, the Air Force Intelligence Agency (AFIA). Perhaps of interest to the Working Group, one directorate of the new AFIA will be the Directorate of Research and Soviet Studies, which will include the present Soviet Awareness and Soviet Affairs Publications Divisions as well as a Research Division at Fort Meade, a Special Studies Division at NPIC and a Competitive Strategies Division in the Pentagon. I will be the Director of this far-flung Directorate and I have high hopes that we can collectively contribute a great deal to a better understanding of the Soviet Union.

With regard to research initiatives, in addition to those which are of purely Air Force interest, we are currently investigating Soviet/Warsaw Pact Critical Military Dependencies (exploring the military relationships between individual Warsaw Pact states and the USSR, identifying critical military dependencies and vulnerabilities) and Soviet Concepts of Nuclear War (updating the "red campaign" model using Soviet-style assessments and correlations). We are also exploring several new initiatives including, but not limited to Competitive Strategies: US and USSR; Soviet Vulnerabilities; and Soviet Perceptions. As the new Directorate coalesces, we anticipate several more initiatives, some of them involving certain luminaries whom I met at the Airlie House Workshop.

Regarding funding, it is my fervent hope that the Air Force can continue to provide what we have in the past. Unfortunately, as I'm sure you're aware, money is very tight and therefore, while I'm certain that we will continue to provide some funding, I cannot at this point put a dollar amount to it.

Very Respectfully,

LLOYD T. MOORE, JR., Colonel, USAF
Director of Soviet Affairs
